Truman Opposes Jewish State, Favors Emigration To Palestine

President Truman let it be known that he still favored large-scale emigration of European Jews to Palestine notwithstanding his reversal of position on the Wagner-Taft resolution calling for unrestricted immigration and its establishment as a Jewish national state.

President Truman said, on November 29, that he no longer favored a Senate resolution providing for the establishment of a Palestine Jewish Commonwealth and gave as the reason for withdrawing the support he had offered as Vice-President a change in conditions since the time of its introduction.

The President said that if such a resolution were adopted now there would be no need for the appointment of a fact-finding body on the Palestine question.

As Vice-President, Mr. Truman recalled, he had offered advance support for the Wagner-Taft resolution creating a Palestine Jewish Commonwealth.

J. David Stern, publisher of The Philadelphia Record, said he had obtained the President's permission to state his position during his visit to the White House. He said Mr. Truman favored the creation in Palestine of a truly democratic state but opposed the establishment of any sovereign nation based on religion, race or creed.

Mr. Stern was one of several with whom the President discussed the Palestine question, among them being Dr. Chaim Weizmann, founder of the Zionist movement and head of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, and Leonard Rosenwald, president of the American Council on Judaism. Dr. Weizmann was returning with Congressional members to the State Department.

Mr. Stern said that if such a resolution were adopted now there would be no need for the appointment of a fact-finding body on the Palestine question.

Mr. Stern said he had just returned from London, where he had many conversations on the Palestine question with British officials, including Ernest Bevin, Foreign Secretary. He expressed the hope that the Anglo-American Palestine Commission would complete its investigation soon since "otherwise they won't have much of a problem to deal with; the winter will take care of it."

Mr. Rosenwald left with the President a seven-point program for ending rioting and bloodshed in Palestine under which he said immigration would be maintained on the basis of "absorptive capacity."

Mr. Rosenwald said conditions in Palestine now had reached a stage "alarming to the peace of the world," and he added:

"This situation is not eased by the issuance of belligerent notes by sovereign States of the Near East, or by demonstrations of nationalist propaganda on the part of Zionists in and out of Palestine."

A constructive solution of the Palestine problem could become a token of earnest resolve of the U.S. to deal with broad world problems before they reach the crisis stage, Mr. Rosenwald said.

As a basis for a fair and peaceful settlement he proposed:

"(1) There shall be a United Nations declaration that Palestine shall not be a Moslem, a Christian or a Jewish State but shall be a country in which people of all faiths can play their full and equal part, sharing fully the rights and responsibilities of citizenship.

"(2) All official declarations on Palestine in any way discriminating for or against a segment of the population shall be formally repudiated; in their place there shall be a renewed pledge of full freedom of religious expression and equality for all in Palestine.

Charges British Back Of Anti-Jewish Riots

Eight prominent Americans, including two Congressmen, declared in a joint statement that the United States should "re-examine" its commitments to Britain in the light of what they termed British "short-sighted self-interest" in Palestine.

The 6,000 word document charged the British with stifling Jewish industrial attempts in Palestine because they might compete with British interests, issuing an "unofficial order" forbidding British soldiers to fraternize with Palestinian Jews, and supporting both it was charged that a protest made at Helsen, Germany, against British Palestine policy resulted in the arrest of Jewish men, women and children who "were indiscriminately beaten by police with rubber truncheons."

The statement was signed by Representative Andrew Somers, Democrat, of New York, and Bertrand W. Gearhart, Republican, of California; Will Rogers, Jr., former Democratic Representative from California; William B. Ziff, publisher and author; Emil Lengyel, author and educator; Mrs. Karin Michaelis, Danish-American writer and feminist; Louis Bromfield and Ben Hecht, authors.

"We believe," the statement said, "that a powerful effort is being made by official Britain to utilize (Palestine) and related situations for the purpose of bringing American troops, planes and warships into the Middle East, where their presence would serve as a bulwark against the threat of British interests which undeniably exists there."

The British are apparently not so much interested in peace and stability in Palestine or elsewhere.

Under the heading, "We can give our money only to clean hands," the statement warned that America should consider the possible use of money advanced to England in loans before completing current financial negotiations. "How much of the loan . . . will

12 To Study Palestine Question

President Truman named a six-member group to represent United States interests on the British-American Committee of Inquiry on the Palestine question. The chairman is Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, of the Fifth Circuit Court, of Houston, Tex.

Membership of the committee of twelve was announced simultaneously in Washington and London under terms of reference calling for the "utmost expedition in dealing with the subjects committed to it for investigation" and for a report to the two Governments within 120 days of the inception of the inquiry. When the investigation will begin the White House was unable to say.

Members of the American group, besides Judge Hutcheson, include Frank Aydelotte, former president of Swarthmore College and now director of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton and American secretary of the Rhodes Trust.

Others are Frank W. Euxton, editor of The Boston Herald; O. Max Gardner, former Governor of North Carolina and a Washington attorney; James G. McDonald, former chairman of the Foreign Policy Association and High Commissioner of German Refugees for the League of Nations, and William Phillips, former Under-Secretary of State, Ambassador to Italy, Presidential representative in New Delhi, India, and delegate to the London Naval Conference in 1935.

Mr. John E. Singleton, judge of the King's Bench Division of the

Yeshiva University

Expansion of Yeshiva College, 186th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, New York, into Yeshiva University, the first Jewish University outside the Holy Land, was announced by Dr. Samuel Belkin, the university's president.

Dr. Belkin said action of the New York Board of Regents approving establishment of the university opens the way for creation of four new graduate schools and a drive for $5,000,000 to finance the expansion.

The corporate name of the institution will be changed from the Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary and Yeshiva College to Yeshiva University. The university is empowered to grant master's and doctor's degrees in several fields and the school now will provide education including high school through graduate school.

Primary inspiration for the expansion, Dr. Belkin said, "is the need for training Jewish leaders fully aware of their Jewish heritage."

Arabs To Boycott Jewish Goods

The Arab League announced that its seven member states would boycott all Jewish-produced goods from Palestine beginning Jan. 1.

The league's secretary-general, Abdul Rahman Azzam Bey, said the boycott was ordered because Jewish industry in Palestine was "based on Zionist funds, collected in foreign countries, to serve a political purpose: the establishment of a Jewish national home and state in Palestine."

"This purpose is not realizable except by the exploitation of markets in Arab countries," he said. Without indicating their nature, Azzam Bey said the league was prepared to take additional steps, if necessary, to combat Zionist aims.

Egypt, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Yemen, Trans-Jordan and Syria are members of the league. Arab groups in Palestine are represented in its councils. Azzam Bey called on non-league Arab States to join the boycott. He specifically exempted the products of Jewish industries in Arab States other than Palestine.

Asked whether the League had acted to protect the welfare of the estimated 70,000 Arabs working for Jewish industry in Palestine, Azzam Bey said he believed the "Zionists will be most pleased when 70,000 Arabs are forced to leave Palestine."

Plan Militant Protest On British Policy

The national board of Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, sent to Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, a telegram protesting "unprovoked violence against unarmed Jews by British soldiers in Palestine." The telegram and cabled messages of condolence to "beleaguered Jewish settlements" in Palestine marked the beginning, it was announced, of a militant campaign to pile up a "national protest" in the U.S. against "coercive British mistreatment" of Jews in Palestine and Europe.

The message to the Ambassador, signed by Mrs. Moses P. Epstein, national president of Hadassah, said that the board represented 150,000 American Jewish women.

It said that the women were "shocked and outraged" by news stories telling of the violence in Palestine and of "beatings and intimidation of displaced Jews by British Army personnel" in a displaced persons camp in Germany. Emanuel Neumann, acting president of the Zionist Organization of America; Mrs. Epstein, president of Hadassah; Leon Gellman, president of Mizrahi, and David Wertheim, secretary of Poale Zion, telegraphed to President Truman that British troops had killed and wounded scores in actions against "undefended Jewish settlements" in Palestine and Jews were mis-

Jewish Agency For Palestine Accuses British Of Intimidation

The British administration of Palestine was accused of "introducing a regime of terror with a view to intimidating the Jews of Palestine into submission to the White Paper policy and the cessation of Jewish immigration" in a cable sent to Secretary of State James F. Byrnes from Jerusalem by the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

Weizmann Gets Big Money For Institute

A check for $1,000,000 representing half the amount sought in the Americas toward the creation of the Weizmann Institute of Science in Palestine, was presented to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, scientist and Zionist leader, at a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York on the occasion of his seventy-first birthday.

Fifteen hundred persons at the founder's dinner, sponsored by the American Committee for the Weizmann Institute, heard Dr. Weizmann extolled for his pioneering in science and in the Jewish homeland by a distinguished assembly of fellow scientists, communal leaders and representatives of Zionist organizations.

time. This was announced by the American Zionist Emergency Council.

Constantine Poulos, Overseas News Agency correspondent, said in a dispatch from Jerusalem that the charge that British authorities were arming and inciting the Arabs of Palestine against the Jews was an old one and that it could not be altered by denial in the House of Lords.

"Every American business man in Palestine, every Arab political leader, every Jewish political leader, both Arab and Jewish Government employees, trade unionists and newspaper men here know that this activity is going on and can cite chapter after verse," he said. "It is no new story or even a sensational story. Here in Palestine this under-cover activity is taken for granted. The name of the British officer who has been directing this work is well known here, as is the name of his Arab assistant."

Mr. Poulos' charge was condemned as "absurd and malicious" by Lord Ammon, Laborite member of the King's household, in the House of Lords.

Authoritative Jewish circles in Palestine said:

"After a careful spot inquiry the allegation in the Government communiqué that Jews fired at troops near Givat Hayim from rifles and automatic weapons is without foundation. The Jews were unarmed and no shots whatever were fired at the troops, who shot at

BLACK FLAGS

When Nazi U-boat commanders hoisted black flags of surrender, it was a "go ahead" signal to the three out of every eight Canadians who normally depend for their livelihood on export trade.

For five years the flow of foreign trade has been largely a government responsibility. But now, to help create peacetime jobs, Canadian enterprise must do its full share in finding customers abroad. This means doing business all over the world, in strange and distant cities, in a hundred languages and currencies.

Canadian banks have a key role in this complicated but essential peacetime task. Every day their foreign branches and correspondents arrange credits, handle documents and perform other intricate operations to bring buyers and sellers together across the obstacles of distance, language and custom.

This banking service is of primary importance to business and to every Canadian worker as Canada turns to the task of re-creating trade abroad to provide jobs at home.

CANADA UNLIMITED — The Formative Years

First train Montreal to Toronto—By Jack Martin, O.S.A., C.P.E.

The Age of Steel Begins

NO LONGER WOULD THE TRAVELLER have to suffer the endless discomforts and dangers of the 5-day stagecoach trip from Montreal to Toronto, for in the '50's the age of steel had begun.

Mile by mile, the lines of steel had forged ahead, crossing valleys, bridging rivers, skirting lakes, until, in 1856 the first link in a mighty chain was forged. With wild celebrations all along the line the first clanking, fire-spitting locomotive, rocking over loose ended, inverted V-rails, swaying over wooden trestles, made their run from Montreal to Toronto. To the youngsters of the day, the railroad train with its autocratic conductor meant romance and adventure... distant places and heroic deeds.

To the visionary, to the men who built Canada, the railroad was the magic path of progress that was to bind these far-flung territories into a united whole... to enable all to benefit to the full by the interchange of resources in food and material between the East and the West. We have seen the results of these dreams and efforts... a nation immeasurably greater than was dreamed of a century ago... a nation that is destined to even greater things if we maintain the faith and courage of the pioneers.

We can build an even greater future for Canada Unlimited by keeping our Victory Bonds as a gilt-edged investment and buying more when we are asked to do so.

Inflationary Pressures Greater Now Than During War, Declares Bank Of Montreal President

George W. Spinney Tells Bank of Montreal Shareholders Of Anti-Inflationary Needs

GENERAL MANAGER B. C. GARDNER REVIEWS MOST ACTIVE YEAR AT 128TH ANNUAL MEETING — HIGHLIGHTS BANK'S LOANING POLICY

Montreal. — George W. Spinney, President of the Bank of Montreal, told shareholders at their recent 128th annual meeting that inflationary pressures were probably greater now than at any time during the war and urged continued voluntary restraint as a means of offsetting this danger to the nation's economy. He declared that it was desirable to have some of the wartime controls remain in operation, but that these controls should be constantly watched to make certain that they do not interfere with rapid reconversion to peacetime economy.

Speaking at the same meeting, B. C. Gardner, general manager, reviewed the most active year in the history of the bank and told of the B of M's contribution to the financing of the war effort and of the many "human relationships" arising out of the financial problems of customers, both of large and small means, particularly the latter.

Stimulus to Production

Mr. Spinney said he knew of no better stimulus to production than healthy competitive effort, free from unnecessary restriction, seeking to fulfil the myriad desires of consumers at home and abroad. "As never before," he said, "Canadian business and industry in the years immediately ahead will need men with new ideas and with the capacity to put these ideas into effect."

Speaking of social security projects and suggestions, Mr. Spinney said it would be very nice if "we could all live on government cheques, but life on this planet being what it is, someone has to plough and reap, to plan and build, to exercise qualities of initiative, foresight and daring; and only this totality of productive effort can provide a real and enduring basis for material welfare and economic security."

"Nothing could be further from my intent," he continued, "than to argue that social security measures are without value to the community, but," he added, "we would deceive ourselves and others if we accept and promulgate the idea that security can emanate effortlessly from government, acting in the role of benevolent and bountiful provider. Government can distribute to benefits that individuals, through their labour, do not provide."

Problems of Peace

Canadians, both those in the fighting forces and those at home, had a right to be proud of their mighty war effort, he said, adding that after six years of conflict a certain amount of war weariness was not unnatural. "But although we are war weary," he continued, "the problems of reconstruction will not bide our time. The post-war era about which so much has been written and said is no longer a theoretical abstraction. The post-war is here and now; and with it comes the realization that, in its own way, peace will make its demands no less than war."

New Peaks Reached

A new high in total assets of $1,715,334,000 was reported by B. C. Gardner in a review of the recently released annual statement. He noted also that deposits had reached a new peak at $1,813,422,000 during the year, an increase of almost $200,000,000 over last year's total. Quick assets for the bank were reported at $1,464,326,000 and holdings of Government and other securities at a total of $1,117,338,000 were announced.

Mr. Gardner said that, in the absence of an adequate demand for commercial loans, the bank also made some purchases of securities in the open market, thus helping to maintain a ready market for Victory Bonds and other government securities in the hands of the public.

He made it clear, however, that the function of the bank as a purchaser of Government securities had arisen from circumstances largely beyond the bank's control, in that the wartime expansion of industry had been accomplished largely through direct Government financial assistance and without the aid of bank credit in form of loans.

"We are hopeful," he said, "that as industry resumes its normal patterns, and as civilian business replaces government contracts, the lending function of the bank will take on increasing importance and scope."

Personal Loans Increase

He noted that there had been a welcome increase in personal loans and stated, "It is not our policy to encourage people to incur unnecessary debts but we believe that our personal loan facilities may play a useful part in a well-ordered financial programme and may be used by borrowers in a manner fully consistent with the principles of thrift and sensible management of their affairs."

"This bank does not deal in money alone. In our day-to-day dealings our managers and staff are concerned with the many human relationships arising out of the financial problems of our customers, both of large and small means, but particularly the latter, who seek assistance from a reliable and trustworthy source."

Mr. Gardner said that the problems of the returning war veterans were receiving special and sympathetic attention.

Where Jew And Christian Meet

(Excerpts from address given by Rabbi Stern at Westmount Park United Church.)

For centuries mutual suspicion characterized the relationship between Jew and Christian. Few were the brave noble spirits on either side who ventured to call for understanding between the adherents of the church and the adherents of the synagogue. Only within modern times, with the help of the searchlight of science and the stimulus provided by the study of comparative religion, have there arisen groups and organizations and movements with the purpose of building goodwill between Jew and Christian.

For the seeker of truth there are definite regions where Jew and Christian do meet. Surely, Jews and Christians meet in the worship of One God. I cannot explain why unto the Jew was assigned the mission of the discovery of monotheism. This belongs in the realm of mystery. But the fact remains that Jewish genius has proclaimed this revelation to humanity, and the battle cry of the Jew throughout the ages of "Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God, the Lord is One" has been heard around the world. And this dogma of the Jew has become equally precious to the Christian.

Yes, the fundamentalist within the church may speak of his God concept as a trinity, but the emphasis is still on the three in One! And the corollary of the One Father is the One Humanity. Upon this concept of ethical monotheism hinges the hope of civilization. It was therefore clear that when Hitler attacked Judaism, he was bound ultimately to war upon Christianity. For the God of the Jew is truly the God of the Christian. Hence, our source is one, even as our destiny is one.

Jew and Christian meet in obedience to God's moral law. Church and synagogue must now, especially in this atomic age, do all to make God's moral law reign supreme. In our individual lives, in national life, and in international life, we must have ethical conduct and the pursuit of righteousness. There is no purpose and no hope for man in the absence of God. If he is not disciplined by morality, will he be able to survive existence and civilization will destroy him.

Jew and Christian, of course, historically meet in the synagogue. What is the church but a synagogue? The Nazarene, who is the foundation of the Christian church, studied in the synagogue and later preached and taught in the synagogue. The form of worship within the church has been taken from the synagogue. Surely, the Bible was given by the Jew to the Christian; and with it the Psalms, the greatest book of hymnology. The great chants of the church were borrowed from the synagogue. It should be commonplace, therefore, for Jew and Christian to worship together. For the informed Jew the hope of Isaiah is a fervent prayer: "My house shall be called a house of prayer for all peoples."

In our day, Jew and Christian have united in the war against the neo-paganism which threatened the Judaeo-Christian conception of life. Bloody has been the struggle. Millions bled and died to wrest victory from the Nazis and Fascists. But where do we go from victory? Now Jew and Christian must unite in the battle for world peace! Otherwise the sacrifice of millions shall prove in vain. We must unite in the building of a warless society and in the establishment of world government. Absolute national sovereignty is outmoded in this new age. Now church and synagogue must bring home to men and nations that brotherhood is no longer a matter of good will but a desperate necessity.

What can save us from the hell of the atomic bomb is the discipline of religion so that atomic energy may be used to bless mankind, to ease the burdens of humanity. Alas, there is a vast psychological space which separates the people who have suffered directly in this war from the non-suffering populations of the earth. We must develop increased sympathy and compassion for those who experienced the war tragedy and war sacrifice and through their martyrdom have become spiritually ennobled. In these post-war days Jews and Christians must guard against peace being sabotaged and the sabotaging of post-war experiments in social betterment.

Let Jew and Christian meet wholeheartedly and sincerely to advance the cause of humanity and thus prove the worthwhileness of religion which calls upon us all: "... and thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Vladimir Grossman On A Mission To Europe

Montrealers are proud of Vladimir Grossman, veteran journalist and author. This versatile man has contributed much to the cultural life of Canadian Jewry since he came to make Canada his home in recent years.

During the early months of the war, Jewish refugees from Austria and Germany who had temporary stay in England were hurriedly brought from there to Canada as enemy aliens and placed in war prison camps. It was the vision of Vladimir Grossman which motivated World Or to establish under his direction schools for manual training in these camps, and these schools trained and gave self-respect to the imprisoned youths, so that today, many of these refugees have come to occupy fine positions as machinists and tool-makers in Canadian industrial life.

With admiration, Jews and non-Jews have come to see in Grossman's work a splendid program of rehabilitation and reconstruction. No wonder that leading government officials have been deeply impressed by Mr. Grossman's personality and effective service. Hence, too, the Montreal Or School is winning daily increased admirers and supporters.

Grossman's spirit is one of tremendous youthfulness. This explains why he so courageously has undertaken the task of

How To Handle Jewish Resistance In Palestine

By A. S. Yahuda, Professor,
New School For Social Research, N.Y.

The following appeared as a letter to the New York Herald Tribune:

When President Truman asked the British Labor government to open Palestine to 100,000 Jews the Labor government, instead of complying with its request and fulfilling its solemn pledges given to the Jews before coming to power, resorted by asking the American government to share responsibility for securing peace and order in Palestine.

No one was more anxious to see the American government taking an active part in the solution of the Palestine question than the Jews. They were, however, not clear about how this responsibility was to be effected. Now it is made known that this responsibility consists in America's participating in a commission to investigate conditions in Palestine and Europe and to prepare proposals for the ultimate establishment of a Palestine trusteeship.

It is useless to insist upon the fact already pointed out by Senators, Congressmen and Zionist leaders that no new commission is necessary to study problems which have repeatedly been discussed by several British commissions. But as the American government has acceded to the Laborites' proposal, it is of greater importance to emphasize that some measures must be sought which will guarantee that America's good will and fair dealing shall not be frustrated by the colonial administration, just as the good intentions of the British government, which issued the Balfour Declaration, were undermined and sabotaged by the same administration.

Apart from all this, it is difficult to see how an administration can command confidence whose law courts discriminate against Jews in a manner unheard of in civilized countries, least of all in England, where the administration of impartial and fair justice has always been the pride of British law courts. Thus it happened several times that a punishment of seven years' imprisonment, sometimes with hard labor, was imposed upon Jews for possessing arms, whereas non-Jews received only a few weeks' imprisonment for the same offense.

The purge of the colonial administration is the more urgent, as one can never foresee what obstacles the officials of the colonial administration can put in the way of bringing to naught the best intentions of the American government.

defenseless men and women proceeding to Givat Mayim, killing six and wounding some twenty-five. The official statement makes no mention of any injuries suffered by the troops by alleged Jewish firing. Moreover, not a single firearm was found on the many hundreds of Jews detained and questioned on the spot.

The Jewish press charged that British troops had acted without reason or restraint in clashes in the Sharon Valley.

British sources said that the fighting included a battle with 600 armed Jews who disregarded a demand to halt their march down the valley.

Speakers at funerals for Jews killed in the fighting pledged that the Jewish community would continue to support illegal immigration into Palestine.

The General Federation of Jewish Labor sent British and American labor groups an appeal to "avert catastrophe" in Palestine.

The appeal said that "it should be clearly understood that not a single man or woman gathered in the Sharon settlements carried or used arms of any kind. Their opposition to the search was in full harmony with the declared policy of the Jewish community to resist the seizure of Jews who seek refuge here."

building Or Schools and training Hachshara farms under Or and UNRRA auspices for the tragic Jewish internees found in German camps of the occupation zones administered by the British and the Americans.

We feel sure Grossman will measure up to the herculean task facing him. He will give generously of himself to the ten thousand Jews assigned to him for his special care.

But psychologically, Grossman will have much to endure as he works in camps such as Belzen on behalf of these "remnants" of his people. There will come before his mind's eye the thousands of fellow Jews who had been done to death in these camps. Their spirits will hover over the works of rescue he will initiate. They, the dead, will bless him for his selflessness and his altruism toward the living.

On voyage to Vladimir Grossman, who sets sail on a difficult mission but a holy one. May God prosper him in his good endeavors and bring him safely back into the midst of the circle of his admiring friends and sincere co-workers. World Or and UNRRA are to be congratulated for having chosen this man who is most worthy for the important job of rehabilitation.

Letter From A Montrealer With UNRRA In Germany

The following letter was written by M. M. Aspler, of Montreal, to his cousin, A. T. Seidman, 1380 Bernard Avenue West, Montreal:

The last three and a half weeks seem like three and a half years. They have been the hardest I have ever spent. My own personal comfort is excellent, but the work and the problems are easily the most difficult I have ever yet encountered.

I don't know whether I told you in any previous letter of my present position. About a month ago I was slated to go to Feldafing, a large Jewish camp. In transit this assignment was changed and I went to Landsberg, the site of the largest Jewish centre in Bavaria.

There are about 5,500 Jews here; 80% of them are from Poland, the balance from Lithuania, Greece, and the odd few from Hungary, Roumania, etc. The men outnumber the women about two to one. As to the children, their almost complete absence is very tragic. There are 51-185 children under the age of fifteen. Of these 110 are without any parents. At a nearby camp there are 70 of whom only three have a parent. It's tragic.

When you first see them they appear quite normal, pretty healthy-looking. Then you ask them for their ages and their answer throws you back on your heels. They just stopped growing five years ago. Thirteen-year-olds look like nine years of age; sixteen-year-olds look like eleven or twelve. But there is something quite heartening about them. I've seen them at their parties. I've seen them sing and dance their Hebrew songs and dances for hours on end.

Living conditions are far from adequate. The people are terribly overcrowded, their food totally lacking in variety, their clothing inadequate. By comparison the "defeated" Germans of the neighborhood protected by the Americans, live like kings. Our people are living in what was formerly a German artillery barracks. Its plumbing is not sufficient. Where 2,000 lived during the war (300 before the war) now about 4,000 occupy those same barracks. The balance live in some building adjoining.

The problems are many. Rehabilitation. Most of the people are sole survivors and have no real roots. We have no books, no newspapers except for the one which our Jewish committee publishes weekly. We have schools without books and even a university (without books). We are endeavouring and are gradually succeeding in getting more and more people (very slowly, though) into trades and work. You see, work has, with many of them, become a symbol of degradation and it will take some time to get them working. But then again we must provide them with the machinery and we haven't got it. To give you an example, our girls' sewing school which was working on some things for the other girls who work in the kitchens and in the hospitals, closed down for a few days, as they didn't have enough black thread, white thread and buttons.

The point of this letter is that we need things and we need them badly and urgently. So, I'm going to urge the whole family and all our friends, to send as soon as possible and as often as possible, the following items:

1. Books — of all descriptions, in Yiddish, Hebrew, English; (In the latter language, principally for beginners.) Greek (we have those 50 Greek men who also speak Hebrew and French) or Polish. The books can be on any number of subjects including technical subjects which will be used in our various trade schools.

2. Articles of clothing, gloves, socks, stockings, underwear, shirts, in fact anything.

3. Odds and ends, such as threads, needles, buttons.

I could write to you for days on the experiences of these people, of their sufferings, of the indignities, of what they have seen. How they survived them is beyond me. I just can't understand it.

We have a chap by the name of Kadushin who managed to keep his camera and took over 6,000 pictures in the ghetto and concentration camps (for Kaszt, as our people here call them). The pictures of the living dead and sufferings of the living are far more moving than a pile of dead bodies.

Enough of this depressing tale. I await post bags your first shipment.

treated in the British-controlled camp for displaced persons at Bergen-Belsen.

Dean Alfange, chairman of the American Christian Palestine Committee, also telegraphed to the President that "liberal-minded Christian people of Greater New York are shocked at the withdrawal of your support of the Wagner-Taft-Walsh resolution" on Palestine.

Lessing J. Rosenwald, president of the American Council for Judaism, deprecated statements by Zionist leaders in Washington that political reprisals against Democratic candidates for Congress might be expected because of the President's withdrawal of support of the Palestine resolution. "There is no such thing as the Jewish vote," he said.

TRUMAN OPPOSES

"(3) Palestine, as a ward of civilized world, shall receive financial help for the expansion of its economy and the enlargement of its immigration opportunities.

"(4) Immigration into Palestine shall be maintained on the basis of absorptive capacity and without privilege or discrimination.

"(5) Immigration procedures shall be controlled by representative bodies of all the inhabitants of Palestine, in association with properly constituted international commissions.

"(6) Institutions of home rule for Palestine shall be progressively and rapidly instituted under the aegis of an international commission.

"(7) The problem of the displaced Jews in Europe shall be treated separately, in the following way:

"a. The above policy on Palestine shall be made known to them.

"b. On the basis of such knowledge, a poll shall be taken in which the displaced persons would list, in order of preference, the lands of their choice for their individual resettlement.

"c. Based upon these findings, an International Displaced Persons Committee shall, with the cooperation of the United Nations, bring about the resettlement of the displaced on a basis corresponding as nearly as possible to their preferences, with countries of the United Nations cooperating to take in a fair number of the displaced.

"Action by the United States Government to make available unneeded and current immigration quotas, and the necessary consular and visa machinery for the immigration of displaced persons of all faiths, would set a high moral example to the rest of the world of our determination to contribute to the solution of world problems and would, in fact, bring about the rapid solution of the refugee problem."

Graduate schools will be established in Community Administration and Social Research, Education, Adult Education and Mathematics. Dr. Belkin predicted a sharp increase in the present enrollment of 1,000 students in the fifty-year-old school.

It is planned to enlarge the present Teachers' Institute into a School of Religious Education offering bachelor's degrees in religious education and Hebrew literature, Dr. Belkin said.

Students at the University, now representing twenty-five states and fifteen European countries, will be able to work toward the following six new degrees: bachelor and master degrees of Hebrew literature, religious education, Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy.
